4th Biennial Mental Health and Primary Care Conference

DESCRIPTION: This program was designed to address top issues providers told us face them everyday in their practice. Each session has been designed to include time for you to ask your questions of our conference faculty. This year's conference is sure to be one of our best conferences yet!

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- Improve the skills of the primary care provider to address unique mental health needs of patients in his/her care.
- Build collaborative relationships between primary care and behavioral health providers to improve patient outcomes.
- Recognize warning signs of suicide in adolescents and identify treatments and follow-up which can reduce likelihood of negative consequences.
- Use differential diagnosis for ADHD and bi-polar in children and review pharmaceutical and alternative treatments for children with these disorders.
- Utilize diagnostic criteria to differentiate types of mood and anxiety disorders and appropriate pharmaceutical and non-pharmaceutical interventions for these disorders.
- Identify management techniques and treatments for patients with addictions to prescription medications.
- Identify management techniques for patients with chronic physical health conditions and co-mingled behavioral health conditions including sleep disorders, heart disease, dementia and pain along a continuum.
- Manage patients complaining of chronic pain through multidisciplinary approaches.
- Identify advantages and disadvantages of integrated models of primary care and mental health treatment.
- Identify challenges to provider well-being, maintaining boundaries and identify techniques and methods for finding balance in your life.

Thursday, October 2, 2008 Pre-Conference: Dealing with Behavioral Health Issues in the Inpatient Setting

Caregivers must respond to a variety of needs and considerations when working with the Behavioral Health patient in the inpatient medical setting. These considerations can increase in complexity from understanding diagnosis, interventions and even providing de-escalation interventions to manage a potentially violent situation. In four dynamic hours, the pre-conference will address considerations for working with the behavioral health patient in the acute care inpatient setting. Robin Henderson, PsyD will discuss the range of symptoms a mental health diagnosis can portray, as well as considerations related to the interplay of mental health and medical diagnosis. Kristin Powers, MSW, and Veronica Alotta, RN, will introduce strategies and interventions for patients with co-morbid disorders in a general medical setting and provide practical case presentations. They will also discuss common psychiatric medications and their side effects. Finally, Molly Wells, LCSW and Gary Hickmann, RN will share observable signs and early interventions to decrease potentially violent situations. Useful examples will be discussed that demonstrate what can be done to prevent and/or de-escalate dangerous situations, some of their causes, and how staff attitudes can help or hinder the outcome.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- 1) Recognize the range of symptoms related to a mental health diagnosis
- 2) Recognize the therapeutic and adverse effects of commonly prescribed psychiatric medications
- 3) Identify common interventions that can be implemented for working with the mental health patient
- 4) Identify "warning signs" patients might show prior to a violent outburst
- 5) Demonstrate de-escalation, mediation, and other techniques to prevent aggression
- 6) Describe the underlying causes of threatening behaviors exhibited by individuals with mental illness
- 7) Describe how treatment provider behavior can affect the behavior of the individuals they serve

ACCREDITATION:

Provider approved by the California Board of Registered Nursing, Provider Number 8050 for 4.0 contact hours. Provided approved by the Oregon Chapter NASW and has been approved for 4.0 credit hours for the pre-conference workshop. Application for Continuing Education credit has been filed with the National Board of Certified Counselors. Determination of credit is pending.
